A Message from the Honourable Brad Duguid Minister of Economic Development, Employment and Infrastructure

On behalf of the Ministry of Economic Development, Employment and Infrastructure, I am pleased to welcome everyone to People in Motion, Canada's largest disability exhibition.

Our government firmly believes that the benefits of hiring and including people with disabilities is incredibly important, both to our society and economy, not only to individuals, but to communities, businesses and our overall provincial well-being. That is why we continue to work hard to ensure that people with disabilities are successful in all aspects of their everyday lives.

I am pleased that this exhibition includes a career fair. We all know that greater accessibility allows people with disabilities to more fully participate in our workforce and our economy, and gives employers access to untapped talent. It helps businesses harness the buying power of more people, and allows entrepreneurs to create new companies based on inclusive design, products and services. Most importantly, greater accessibility means a more fair and inclusive society — and that is something from which all Ontarians can benefit.

Please accept my best wishes for an enjoyable and productive exhibition.

Sincerely,
